Friday, February 26th to Monday, March 1st

Headed by Ishaan Akula, Evan Chang, Bill Fei

OVERVIEW & PURPOSE

The purpose of OMMC, or the Online Monmouth Math Competition, is to give talented high school and middle school students an exciting and engaging way to develop their skills in mathematics. Students will have the opportunity to compete in teams, developing valuable teamwork and collaboration skills. In the competition, they will solve thought-provoking challenging mathematics questions. The competition consists of 2 individual rounds and 1 team round administered over the span of 4 whole days, consisting of questions with similar difficulty as those posed on the well-established AMC 10/12 and AIME math competitions.

CODE OF CONDUCT

As a math competition, we have a commitment to uphold the highest standards of academic integrity, and we expect all competitors to do the same. Cheating in this contest (refer to the competition rules) is extremely frowned upon - the main purpose of OMMC is to foster interest in mathematics and aid in mathematical development, and cheating on this contest helps with none of these things.

CONTEST ELIGIBILITY RULES

Contestants must be enrolled in middle school or high school, and should not yet have received a high school diploma. For any gap year exceptions, please contact us for more information. Contestants should also be in teams of 1-4, and working solo is also allowed. Note that any solo competitor will count as their own one man team. They will be allowed to take the Team Round on their own, but will not be given extra time to compensate. They will receive a score on the individual rounds as well as one cumulative score based on all three rounds.

COMPETITION RULES

Be Respectful.

- This means showing utmost respect to all participants or staff. Any violations will result in severe consequences, and the violator will be banned from future events.
- We want to make this competition a safe and enjoyable learning environment, and this means everyone should be kind and respectful to other contestants.
- Please practice common decency practices, such as not bragging about test scores, mocking other people, or putting others down.
- Inappropriate behavior unbecoming of a math competition contestant will be dealt with accordingly. This includes inappropriate team names, behavior on the forums/Discord servers, and in general, any behavior deemed improper by the organizers.

Practice Integrity.

- Please practice integrity while competing in this event. Refrain from using any methods of finding answers, such as searching online, using code, using online/graphing calculators (Symbolab, Desmos, Wolfram Alpha, etc.) or any other methods of cheating.
- The only aids allowed on the OMMC (for all rounds) are scrap paper, writing utensils, rulers, compasses, and a 4-function calculator (a calculator that can only perform the basic operations of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division). Note that none of the problems appearing on the OMMC require the use of a calculator.
- Remember that this is a positive learning environment, and cheating will neither benefit you or the other participants. If any method of cheating is reported, or we find out that a competitor and/or team is cheating, the violator's scores will be invalidated and they will be barred from this and future OMMC events.

- Keep in mind that any attempts to gain additional time for a round is also a form of cheating, and any answers entered after the set time will be considered null/invalid.
- Discussion is also a form of cheating. Do not discuss the individual rounds (Rounds 1 and 2) with anyone until discussion is open (about a week after the test taking window has closed). Do not discuss the team round (Round 3) with anyone except the members of your team until discussion is open (a few days after the test taking window has closed). Anyone found discussing the contest before discussion is open may be subject to disqualification.

Feel free to ask questions or reach out!

- Please do not be afraid to ask us any questions, as we will make sure to get back to you! Our priority is to make sure that everyone feels welcome, so do not hesitate to ask one of our staff members any questions or concerns.

Don't forget to have fun!

- Remember to have fun in this competition! This is a great chance to meet like-minded people across the country and make some friends. Healthy competition is always encouraged!
